AMERICA IS TOO BIG FOR TWO PARTIES

The media is already saying that George Bush is a re-election shoo-in and that there will be no real presidential contest in 1992. But for those of us who care about our youth, about health care, education, the AIDS crisis, peace and the deterioration of the economy, 1992 must be a year where the national dialogue on social policy is enriched and expanded. Dr. Lenora Fulani, America's independent presidential candidate in 1992, is running to challenge the political process that locks out new leadership and prevents a genuine national dialogue on these issues.

The voter rebellion of 1990 made clear that millions of Americans no longer want to participate in "politics as usual." Many didn't vote. Many voted against incumbents. And where voters had the opportunity, they cast ballots for independents who offered an alternative to the candidates of the two major parties.

After years of disappointing performance by our elected officials — leading to the S&L scandal, the failure to pass civil rights legislation and an inability to stop the AIDS epidemic, the two major parties have become so far removed from the diverse concerns of ordinary citizens that millions of Americans no longer feel represented. More and more people recognize that America has gotten too big for two parties.

Dr. Fulani was among the first to take action in response. In 1988, her independent presidential campaign expanded our political choices beyond those offered by the two major parties and established that America needed more democracy.

In 1988, Dr. Lenora Fulani became the first African American and the first woman presidential candidate in U.S. history to be on the ballot in every state. That same year she became the first Black woman to qualify for federal primary matching funds. She garnered a quarter of a million votes as an independent, making third party politics a new and developing option in the 1990's, and inspired the "Democracy in Presidential Debates Act", H.R. 791, which would make the Presidential debate process more open and inclusive.

Dr. Fulani's concern for democracy extends beyond our borders. She has popularized the struggle to rid the African nation of Zaire of its brutal dictator Mobutu Sese Seko. She also supported hundreds of pro-democracy candidates in Haiti.

Countless protests against police brutality and racially-motivated violence from Los Angeles to Plainfield, N.J., to the Bronx, have been led by Dr. Fulani, who demonstrated with Atlantic City's Forgotten Youth for recreation facilities and economic justice. She is the leader of the "Youth and Democracy Voter Registration Drive" in New York City.

The cable TV show, "Fulani", syndicated in 10 cities nationally, is hosted by Dr. Lenora Fulani, who also authors a weekly syndicated column in 140 newspapers and a bi-weekly radio commentary on 55 stations nationally. Dr. Fulani has been a keynote speaker at Harvard Law School, Cornell University, Howard, Brown, Spellman, Smith, Tuskegee Institute, University of California at Berkeley and Center for Media, London.

Dr. Fulani has been a guest on countless TV and radio programs, including The MacNeil-Lehrer Report, Crossfire, America's Black Forum, BET's Our Voices, the Larry King Show, Sonya LIVE!, Tony Brown's Journal; and on National Public Radio, National Black Network, Inner City Broadcasting, Gay Cable Network, KISS-FM, WLIB, WBAI, WVON, WDAS, WOL, WHUR, WDCU, and many more.

Our Goal:

- Qualify for matching funds by Sept. 1, 1991 by raising a minimum of $6,000 in each of 22 states.
- Raise 1 million dollars by January 1992.
- Have the government match your campaign contribution dollar for dollar!

In order to legally qualify, you must raise $5,000 in each of 20 states. Once we've attained our goal, we've reached the threshhold and are eligible to have the government match your campaign contribution dollar for dollar.

Contributions:

- All contributions to Dr. Fulani's campaign should be made to:
  Lenora B. Fulani for President

Individuals can contribute up to $1000, $250 of which will be matched by the federal government.

- The Republicans and Democrats will each be receiving about $60 million of our tax dollars to run negative, no issue campaigns, and qualifying for matching funds gives us a chance to use our tax dollars for something that benefits us for a change!
